THE HICHBORN

MODERN AMERICAN, FARM TO TABLE, FINE DINING RESTAURANT

10 CHURCH STREET
STOCKTON SPRINGS, MAINE

OFFERED AT $825,000

THE PROPERTY

The Nathan G. Hichborn House is a historic house at 10 Church Street in Stockton Springs, Maine. Built in the 1850s, this Italianate structure is one of the community's more architecturally sophisticated buildings, and is notable as the home of Nathan Hichborn, a local shipbuilder and politician who was responsible for the town's separation from Prospect. The house was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1988.

Now the location of a Farm to Table restaurant, the Hichborn House is located in the village of Stockton Springs, just south of US Route 1 and the Stockton Springs Community Church on the west side of Church Street. It is a 2+1/2-story wood-frame structure, with a hip roof, clapboard siding, and a stone foundation. The roof has broad eaves studded with paired brackets, has gabled dormers facing front, and is topped by an hexagonal cupola.

The east-facing front facade is symmetrical, three bays wide, with its center entrance sheltered by a portico supported by clusters of chamfered square posts. A three-part window stands above the entrance, with a molded hood shaped to the window parts' curved tops. The interior of the house has well-preserved woodwork, and has faux-marbled slate fireplace surrounds in the downstairs parlors. An ell extends to the rear, joining the house to a carriage barn (pictured here). The house has traditionally been given a construction date of 1849, but its construction and styling suggest an 1850s date. The house was designed by Alfred Bither, an architect then based in Bangor, and was built for Nathan G. Hichborn, a local shipbuilder and politician. Hichborn was a prolific shipbuilder, turning out 42 ships over a 28-year period.

THE RESTAURANT

Visitors come from all over Maine to dine at The Hichborn, both locals and tourists alike. The restaurant has received numerous accolades and stellar reviews for their attention to detail, artful serving pieces, original wall art, warm and inviting atmosphere and beautiful, delicious food. With 47 seats (room for more), dining at The Hichborn has become highly sought after. They offer a chef's tasting menu which will delight the eyes and the palate. They receive stellar reviews on Tripadvisor, Yelp, Open Table and Google. Read what Maine Magazine had to say about The Hichborn!

While Hichborn is no longer open, there remains a following, they receive calls asking when they will re-open, and have a serious following. The restaurant remains in turnkey condition and a buyer could walk in, stock with food, start prepping and open for dining in no time.

All FF&E conveys, and seeing the quality in person makes a difference!

"Hello from THE HICHBORN!"

We are a modern American restaurant cooking through the seasons with fresh ingredients provided by regional farms, fishers and foragers. The menu is intentionally small and changes often. We always have gluten free and vegan options, the kitchen however is not a gluten free environment. Everything is made fresh, in house."
